

NSA REPORT SAYS HSAS IS UNPREPARED FOR IMMINENT ZOMBIE ATTACK

By Marcus Berasquez('08)

As you know there has been a massive outbreak of zombie attacks throughout the world. The most recent incident was the Helsinki Zombie Massacre, where 700 people were turned into zombies.

Thanks to these incidents, vigilante groups such as the JOSEZ (Jersey Organization for Stopping and Eliminating Zombies), and of course the more popular ZAP (Zombie Annihilation Project).

Even though the government and news reports are telling us to go on with our lives as planned, people know that it is time to worry.

Are HSAS students protected from a zombie invasion? What if we are attacked during school hours? These are all questions that can be heard in the hallways of HSAS on a daily basis. So Common Sense asks: is HSAS ready for a zombie invasion?

There are many things to remember during a zombie invasion, the first of which is that you must survive.

First, does the area in which you

Picture set-up by J. Ziegler('08)

Zombies have struck HSAS before, are we ready or will we make same mistakes intend to stay, your home zone, have the supplies needed for a long stay?

Secondly, is your home zone easy to barricade?

Lastly, if necessary, can you leave your home zone quickly, or will you be trapped if the barricades fail?

Jose Gonzales(O'taco), the resident zombologist at HSAS, shares, "the first thing you need is supplies; if you plan to stay in one place for a while you need things."

"We don't even have enough supplies to last one day when those zombie guys come," says Assistant Principal Mr. Olivieri. He goes on to add that "we do have the weapons though to repel them."

Olivieri reminded this reporter that "yeah, HSAS is loaded with mad weapons dawg,"

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 10)

BEWARE THE GRAVIS

By Carl Gayle('08)

Recently, there have been reports of hawk and squirrel attacks on the Lehman College campus. These violent attacks have many students fearing the dangers of walking with out some sort of protection.

Wuta West('10) was too traumatized to recall the events of his attack, but he did tell Common Sense that the squirrels are going by the name "New Edition" with Lenny Goy('09) as their leader.

However, the peace officers say that the real threat isn't the animals, it's the beast that is Travis Gardener('11). Many people define a gangster as someone who busts guns, rolls dice, and is dangerous. However, if you have ever met Travis, aka Gravis Gardener, you will instantly know that being a gangster is nothing, and being Gravis is real!

Gravis has attained a level of disrespect that even Elliot Spitzer has not reached.

"I decided when I was zero years old that I wanted someone to play with that looked like me

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 2)

MANSDORF, A RESUME

By Steven Mieses('08)

If you've ever been taught by Mr. Mansdorf then there's no doubt he's told you about the many jobs he's had in the past. However, there are a few jobs he chose not to mention and he thought would be forgotten by others, until now.

After overhearing a conversation between Mr. Mansdorf and Mr. Schulman, this reporter has uncovered these gaps in his resume.

In 1983 he spent two years living in Guatemala. For those two years Mansdorf made a living as an exotic dancer in a nightclub called "Back Dat Thing Up." His moves were so sensual he almost became involved in the Elliot Spitzer scandal, sort of.

Mansdorf thought it was time to move on to a new career a year later and he played on the New York Knicks as the starting Center. He averaged 32 points and 11 blocks per game. He was the reigning MVP from 1980-1983 and even brought home an Olympic gold medal. Not even our own alumnus, Carl Gaul, the (CONTINUED ON PAGE 2)

PROM CANCELED!

By Aleeza Halen('08)

Seniors have been looking forward to prom since their freshman year of high school. Aside from graduation, "prom is the highlight of every high school student's career," says Sally Sue('10).

Prom is said to be scheduled for June 7th, 2008 and the tickets were going to be $120 for singles and $100 for dates. However, our "sugar daddy" fund from Guilder Lehrman has run out because of the pink ninjas.

According to Jack Mullethead ('11), "the pink ninjas are a group of Mr. Elinson's minions, used to carry on his evil doings while reciting the Bill of Rights."

These clandestine mischief makers have drained not only the school's budget on books and electronics. They have diverted the funds to buy pink bedazzled costumes.

The senior class is furious and demands that they have the senior prom they've always wanted or that they are allowed immediate membership in the history spewing pink ninjas.

The prom committee is petrified and is now working overtime to make prom possible. Jamie Slak!meanie('08) thinks, "it

Picture altered by Aleeza Halen('08)

The Army of the Pink Ninja captured in a rare photograph sucks that everyone, including myself waited four years for a prom that's nonexistent."

The prom committee hosted a bake sale and made $17.83 from a morbidly obese jackelope's love of sugar coated goods, which is now being used as HSAS's senior prom fund.

The new location of prom is the abandoned warehouse off Route 32 in New Jersey. Prom officials offer, "don't mind the smell; it's just the leftover food from Johnny Rockets."

The new theme is now "Under the Garden State Parkway" instead of "Under the Sea" and the prom dresses will only be made of recyclable products.

It'll now cost $350 for singles and $300 for couples (each) if we actually want that prom you seniors always dreamed.

So "keep saving that allowance," says Brenda Teddy('09).

Also complain to our senior committee because they supposedly knew of the pink ninja's plot to take our funding and whole heartedly supported it believing that they to could join the pink ninja squad. They were disappointed however, when they discovered that the pink ninjas were only using them to take the money they had raised from senior events.

(CONTINUED ON PAGE 10)